

Study Guide for Composition II Final Assessment

Your final assessment will include four open-ended questions based on any of the following topics. You should be able to explain, with examples, the following concepts and issues in composition. The best way to prepare is to review the material and handouts distributed in class from the course website: <http://www.dlmsummers.info/northwood-comp-ii>

- APA citation formatting for in-text and bibliographic citations
- stages of the writing process
- conventions of academic writing
- peer review process
- types of sources
- rhetoric and rhetorical awareness (including visual rhetoric)
- literature reviews and how they're used in academic research
- what paragraphing is and how to use the m.e.a.l plan to create paragraphs
- primary research and data analysis
- classification, definition, and division
- the difference between proofreading and revision
- what thesis statements are and how to create them
- structure of a research paper